Let's Start!

Everyone loves traditional holidays!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about travel and vacations in social situations.

Ask your partner:

- What traditional holidays do you like from your country? Why?
- What holidays do you know about from other countries?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about celebrations and traditions.
- I can talk about intentions and plans.
- I can make and respond to suggestions.

Let's Explore!

Sally is in New York. John is in Mexico. They are video chatting. What do they talk about?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: Hi, John!
John: Hi, Sally! Where are you?
Sally: I just arrived in New York City.
John: Are you going to be there for Thanksgiving?
Sally: Yes, I'm staying here for three weeks.
John: You should go see the Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade.
Sally: Oh, yeah?
John: It's the second longest running Thanksgiving parade in the United States. It's an American tradition. It's famous for its colorful balloons, floats and marching bands. Santa Claus makes an appearance at Herald Square at the end.
- Sally: That's cool. Are you going to be in Mexico at the end of October?
John: Yes, we're visiting Baja California until November 5th.
Sally: Great! Make sure you check out the traditional Mexican Day of the Dead festivities. People wear colorful costumes, prepare special foods and build monuments of flowers.
John: OK, good idea!

Let's Practice!

Learning Points

Be Going To vs. The Present Continuous Tense

The structure be going to + verb and the Present Continuous tense are similar. They can be used to talk about the future.

You use the structure be going to + verb to talk about future intentions or decisions in a general way.

You use the Present Continuous tense for future plans or arrangements that have been planned or booked.

Examples:

- I'm staying in New York for two weeks. (Present Continuous)
- I'm going to stay in New York for a while. (Going to)
- We're visiting Baja, California until November 5th. (Present Continuous)
- We're going to visit Baja, California sometime next year. (Going to)
